Guide for Network Organisers

Vetting, review, taxonomy, wording and the audit log

For the county’s network organisers

BrightTime is a countywide platform for out-of-school time. Families and young people find after-school, summer and weekend activities; the organisations that run them take registrations and record attendance; and the county's network organisers vet every organisation and listing.

CHAPTER 1

BrightTime for network organisers

This guide is for the county's network organisers: the people who decide which organisations and listings appear on BrightTime, and who run the site itself. Sign in, then use the links at the top of the console: Review queue, Taxonomy, Wording and Audit log.

The review queue

The Review queue has three lists, oldest first:

- Organisations applying: new applications and ones sent back after changes.
- Listings waiting for review: drafts that providers have submitted.
- Published listings changed since review: a provider's edit to a live listing goes live at once. Look these over, and unpublish anything that shouldn't be there.

Reviewing an organisation

Open an organisation to see its kind, legal name, what it does, its website, its sites, its active owners, and its history of decisions.

1. Start review marks it under review, so other organisers know someone has it.
2. Work through the vetting checklist and save it as you go:
    - Contact verified: you reached the owner on a phone number or address that the organisation's public record supports. Required to approve.
    - Website and public details checked.
    - Safeguarding policy seen.
    - Insurance certificate expires: the date on the certificate you saw. Some organisations need a current one to be approved; the checklist says when.
    - The checklist also shows whether the organisation has an open site (it needs one to be approved), how many active owners it has, and how many staff and mentors have no current background check recorded.
3. Decide:
    - Approve. Its submitted listings can then be published.
    - Request changes, saying what it should change or send. The organisation sees your note and sends the application back when it's ready.
    - Reject, saying why. The organisation sees your reason.

Later, you can suspend an approved organisation (saying why; it sees your reason) and reinstate it.

Reviewing a listing

A listing's review page shows it as families will see it. For a listing reviewed before, it also shows changes since the last review, field by field: what it was then and what it is now.

Decide:

- Approve and publish. It appears in search within a minute. If the organisation isn't approved yet, you can't publish, but you can still send it back with a note.
- Request changes, saying what the provider should change.
- Reject, saying why. The provider will need to start a new listing.

For a published listing that changed since review:

- The changes are fine marks it reviewed.
- Unpublish, saying why it's coming down. The provider sees your reason. Publish again puts it back.

Taxonomy

Taxonomy holds the words providers tag listings with and families filter by, in four vocabularies: categories, interests, accommodations and skills.

For each term:

- a code of lowercase letters, digits and hyphens, like `after-school-meals`. It appears in links, filters and saved searches, so it can't change once made;
- its names in each language. English is required, and pages fall back to it when a language has no name;
- its order (lower numbers first), and for some vocabularies a parent category.

The skills vocabulary is what young people choose from for their portfolios, and what organisations endorse. It starts empty: add the skills your county wants to recognise.

Saving a term updates the listings tagged with it in search shortly afterwards. Retire stops editors and filters offering a term; listings already tagged keep it until they're re-tagged. Restore brings it back.

Wording

Wording lets you change any sentence on the site, in any of its languages, for your county only.

1. Find text or a key: search for the words you see on the page.

2. Write your wording for the language you're in. Keep every part in curly brackets, such as `{organisation}`, exactly as it is: those parts are filled in when the page is shown.
3. Save wording. It shows at once.

Wording you have changed lists every override in the current language. Go back to the standard wording removes one. Every change is in the audit log.

The audit log

The Audit log lists what people did on your county's site, such as sign-ins, account changes and every decision about organisations and listings: who, what, when, the outcome (allowed, refused or error) and the detail. Newest first. Nothing in it can be edited or removed.

Filter it by action (the start of the action's name, such as `enrollment.`), by person (their email address), by subject id, by outcome, and by a from and to date.

Consent by signed form

Some consents a parent gives for a child under 13 need a signed form rather than an email, because they disclose more about the child. When a family brings you a signed form, you confirm it on BrightTime, and the consent is recorded as given on that evidence. The step is built behind the scenes; its screen in the console is still to come.

What you can't see

Being a network organiser doesn't give you young people's records. You see organisations, listings and the audit log. A family's details are seen only by the organisations the family shares them with. Platform administrators, who run the servers, can't see them either.

CHAPTER 2

About BrightTime

BrightTime helps a county's families and young people find things to do outside school, and helps the organisations that run those activities manage them. Each guide below is written for one kind of person.

If you are…	Read
A parent or guardian	Families
13 or over, with your own account	Young people
Someone who runs activities for an organisation	Organisations
A network organiser for the county	Network organisers

One person can be more than one of these. A parent who also coaches a team uses both the families and the organisations guide, with the same account.

Where BrightTime runs

- The website, on the county's own address (for the seed region, `kettle.localhost` in development). Anyone can search it without an account, and it works with JavaScript turned off, on a slow connection or an old phone. Organisations and network organisers use its console: the pages under Your organisations, Review queue and the other links that appear once you sign in.
- The app, for Android and iOS. It searches the same listings and adds what a phone does well: a personal feed, reminders, notifications, a family's consent centre, and taking attendance without a signal.

Languages

Everything is offered in English, Spanish, Chinese (Simplified), Bengali, Haitian Creole and Arabic. Choose a language at the foot of any web page, or under Account in the app. Arabic reads right to left throughout.

The translations are machine drafts until native speakers have reviewed them. A listing that was translated by machine says so.

What is ready, and what is coming

BrightTime is being built in stages. This table says where each part stands today, so that nothing in these guides promises a screen that doesn't exist yet.

	Website	App	Notes
Searching and browsing activities	Yes	Yes
Saving activities	Yes (this browser only)	Yes (follows your account)
Accounts, passwords, passkeys	Yes	Yes
Children's profiles and consent	The consent email's link	Yes
Agreeing to the terms of use	Yes	Yes
A personal feed, interests, your area, reminders, notifications		Yes
Organisations: profile, sites, staff, listings, import	Yes
Organisations: forms, eligibility, waivers, applications, fees, attendance, messages, reports	Yes
Organisations: taking attendance on a phone, offline		Yes
Network organisers: review, taxonomy, wording, audit	Yes
Families applying to programs, signing waivers and paying	Coming	Coming	Built behind the scenes; the family screens are next
A household's family profile, and stopping a share	Coming	Yes	Sharing itself comes with applying
Messages from organisations, and a family's own attendance	Coming	Coming	As above
A young person's portfolio, badges and playlists	Coming	Coming	As above
Organisations: playlists	Coming		As above
Organisations: badges	Coming		As above

Where a listing says "Registration through BrightTime opens soon", contact the organisation named on it to save a place for now.

Words used in these guides

- Listing or activity: one thing to do: a program, an event, a drop-in resource, or a job or internship.
- Organisation: a group that runs activities. Families sometimes call them providers.
- Site: a place where an organisation runs activities.
- Network organiser: the county's own staff, who check every organisation and listing before it goes live.
- Consent: a parent's or guardian's agreement, given one thing at a time, for a child under 13 to use part of BrightTime.
- Share: what a family chooses to let one organisation see about its members, and for how long.
